

CADE TOMPKINS PROJECTS

artnet

Art World

The Women Defining Printmaking at the 2026 IFPDA Print Fair

As the market for prints grows, women artists are having a moment.

by Sarah Cascone

April 10, 2026

Excerpt: Women artists were a highlight at the opening night of the International Fine Prints and Drawings Association (IFPDA) Print Fair, on view this weekend at New York's Park Avenue Armory.

Cade Tompkins Projects of Providence, Rhode Island, is showing three large-scale, multi-panel works by Israeli artist Orit Hofshi. She hand-carves her woodcut blocks, which she reuses to create different compositions inspired by landscapes and nature. Each work is unique, embellished with charcoal rubbing and other drawings, with prices ranging from $55,000 to $75,000.